F1x.4 Withdrawal state with delirium

A condition in which the withdrawal state is complicated by delirium.

Alcohol-induced delirium tremens should be coded here.

Delirium tremens is a short-lived, but occasionally life-threatening, toxic-confusional state with accompanying somatic disturbances. It is usually a consequence of absolute or relative withdrawal of alcohol in severely dependent users with a long history of use.

Prodromal symptoms typically include insomnia, tremulousness, and fear. Onset may also be preceded by withdrawal convulsions.

How does it affect fertility ?

- Basigin (BSG) - crucial receptor- for COVID-19
- BSG is expressed - the uterus and the stroma and granulosa cells of the ovary.
- BSG may play a role during follicle development, corpus luteum formation and embryo implantation.
- Alters the function of the hypothalamic-pituitary-gonadal axis.
- Sex steroids are potent immune modulators, thus different progesterone and androgen concentrations are likely to influence the immune response and inflammatory outcomes of COVID-19.
- COVID-19 and female fertility - unclear.
